

MultiRIP

Understanding Which Ink Channels are Clogged on a Nozzle Check

When you change the ink setup to run your printer as a hybrid, it becomes important to know which inks are in each of the channels – not only to setup your printer, but also when you are printing a nozzle check. This will help you understand which color of ink is not printing and allow you to better trouble shoot your printer. Below are some of the nozzle check patterns for the different printers.

4800 Nozzle Check Pattern

1400 Nozzle Check Pattern

