

MultiRIP

How many computers can I install MultiRIP on?

Unlike most other RIP software that use a dongle and limit your use of the software only to a computer that the dongle is installed on, MultiRIP is a single-computer license that uses an online activation system that allows you to use the software without the use of a dongle. To activate your software, you will take the 16-digit Product Code and the automatically generated User Code to iProof Systems' website to create a Validation Code. Each Product Code comes with three validation codes just in case something happens to the computer (i.e. hard drive crashes).

The user also has the opportunity to remove the last validation from a computer and the validation code will be added back into the online account so another computer can be validated in the future. For more information, click on the link below for the instructions on removing the validation.

How can I remove the validation from one computer and put it on another computer or put it back into my account? Also used before reformatting a computer's hard drive.
